Preface

Following the publication of the first fascicle of this series, István Borzsák passed away. Before his death, however, he was able to proofread the text of the first book of elegies (I 1–15 T.) and discuss the various problematic passages with us. Tibor Szepessy assumed his role.

The chronological order of the poems was determined by Ágnes Ritoók-Szalay (as was the case with the first fascicle). Unlike the epigrams, a branch of the textual tradition can be distinguished that presents 14 elegies in the order of their composition. We have adhered to this in our publication (El. 19–32 M.). Naturally the chronological order of the other elegies sometimes cannot be determined precisely. The correspondence between Janus (El. 15–17 M.) and Tito Vespasiano Strozzi (Appendix 2–4) is kept together. The poem that is included here as the 34th elegy should stand at the beginning, since it was composed in 1448.

In the latin texts e/ae/oe, ti/ci, y/i and word initial h have been tacitly normalized. Otherwise orthography is that of the manuscripts resp. early printed books.

The Lexicon Latinitatis medii aevi Hungariae – as mentioned in the preface to the first fascicle – gradually covers the lexical items of the texts published here. Now one should consult also its first supplement to the five volumes so far published.¹

The apparatus of the similia was written by László Török. He strove, first and foremost, to collect similar passages or references in the classical and contemporary poetic language. He also gathered a smattering of reminiscences in the Latin poetry of 16th century Hungary, and – where appropriate – to cite historiographical sources of the Hungarian Middle Ages. The editor of the text contributed only on rare occasions.

The collation of the editions Jo, Jq, Jr, Jx and Eh was done by Martina Monostori.

Introduction

The contents of the present fascicle: elegies

In the first fascicle of the series (JPO I,1,9–10), we explained the considerations on which we based our selection of the elegies: we include poems that are of medium length and are composed of distiches.² The core of this is comprised of the “Florentine corpus,” which consists of 12 pieces to which the compiler of the Buda collection (B) added three other elegies (Eleg. I 1–15 in Teleki’s and Kovásznai’s edition). Thus we published some poems that in other publications have been classified as elegies among the epigrams: Eleg. II 13 Tel. = Epigr. 315 M., Eleg. XXXI Ábel p. 127 = Epigr. 213 M., Eleg. 21 VKS² p. 324–6 = Epigr. 321 M.

In his 1569 edition (Eh), János Zsámboky (in Latin: Ioannes Sambucus) published a longer verse wedged in between the Eranemos and the II 4–18 Tel. elegies (f. XIIv–XVIIr). He was the first person to include the 254-line verse, which bears the inscription Bartolomeo Fontio respondet Florentiae Ian: Pan:; among the elegies.³ Teleki and Kovásznai published it as the fourth work of the Appendix carminum (I p. 671–687) among the foreign poems, and in their comments appended to the verse in the Utrecht edition they offer detailed philological evidence in support of their refutation of Janus’ authorship (cf. Tel. I p. IX). The actual author, as they persuasively argue, was Angelo Poliziano. A short citation from the Utrecht edition: quemvis potius quam Ianum Pannonium hujus epistolae scriptorem fuisse, id vero his argumentis omni exceptione majoribus conficiemus. Scholars have since accepted their view. See for instance Hegedüs István [33, 5–6], Huszti [40, 178–180] and, referring to Marchesi, Juhász [49, 12] ([50, 7]).

There is, however, an elegy in the Utrecht edition the authenticity of which is doubtful. The textual tradition of Eleg. II 18⁴ is based entirely on the Zsámboky edition (XLII^r–XLVI^r). Teleki and Kovásznai observe in the body of their text only that the text has deteriorated and in places is fragmentary (or has not yet been entirely reconstructed). In the preface, which in accordance with the practice at the time was composed later, they question its authenticity: carmen de rerum humanarum conditione, quod admodum est depravatum, nec Jani videtur esse (I p. IX).

In 1912 István Hegedüs held a lecture at the Hungarian Academy of Sciences entitled “Janus vallásos költeményei” (The Religious Verses of Janus) [36]. He strove to provide an answer to the question, “Can one speak of religious verse or, even more so, true religious verse in the case of a poet of whom – as a Renaissance spirit in every way – one would have even more reason to say, as one of Goethe's biographers wrote of him, that as an artist he was a polytheist and as a philosopher a pantheist?"⁵

Hegedüs strives to consider all of the possible reasons to reply both in the affirmative and in the negative to this question, and he refers with good reason to the epigram entitled De signis quae Moldavis erepta templo Virginis Budae (sc. fixa fuerant). In December 1467 Stephen III Voivode of Moldavia set a trap for the army of King Mátyás and caused serious losses. The king himself was wounded. The Hungarian army took the flags that had been captured from the enemy forces to Buda and placed them in the Church of Our Lady. Janus, who saw the events from up close,⁶ wrote a verse in which he pleads with the Virgin Mary for her protection (Epigr. 432 M., cf. Huszti [41, 268]). The textual tradition of the epigram leaves no doubt whatsoever regarding the authenticity of the poem.

The complexity of the task of authenticating the poem, however, is demonstrated by the fact that in 1929 László Juhász [49, 12], who followed in the wake of Teleki and Kovásznai, threw it into question and then, swayed by Huszti's – later published [42, 68–70] – critical analysis [50, 7], set aside his reservations and acknowledged the authenticity of the poem.⁷ Sándor V. Kovács did not include it in the first bilingual collection ([97, 500–501]), and this is perhaps the reason why Csapodi [20, 21] also rejects it (although in the passage he cites ([56, 572–3]), V. Kovács does not contend that the poem is not the work of Janus). Béla Karácsonyi offers a line of reasoning that is very different from that of Huszti, but perhaps all the more thought-provoking. At a conference held on the 500th anniversary of Janus' death, he offered an analysis of the poem from the perspective of the fragile relationship between the poet and the king and arrived at the conclusion that it was indeed authentic [57, 115]. V. Kovács included it among the works of Janus in his second bilingual edition, which was published in 1987 ([98, 710]).

Research on the manuscript tradition provided a decisive argument regarding the authenticity of the verse. Two Vatican manuscripts, one manuscript from Rome, and one manuscript from Vienna identify the text as the work of Aurelio Lippo Brandolini (ca. 1454–1497) (Lippi Brandolini de laudibus beatissimi patris Sisti IIII pontificis maximi libellus). We have provided a detailed examination of the textual tradition of the elegy elsewhere, and we have published the relevant excerpt from the work by Brandolini (Mayer [66]). In summary, Huszti was correct that the poem that begins Sederat omnipotens in the Sambucus edition is a fragment and the last ten lines (201–210) are the conclusion of another poem, the epigram entitled De Eucharistia by Brandolini (inc.: Virgineum in gremium caelo descendere ab alto).

We have included an elegy, in all likelihood Janus' earliest elegy, at the end of the volume, since in the manuscript the author is not given. Ágnes Ritoók-Szalay [79, 45–54] (compare with [81, 616] = [82, 124] as well) offers a detailed argument and a list of reasons in support of Janus' authorship.

In summary, we have 15 elegies from the Buda corpus, another 13 are first published by Sambucus and five by Ábel (see below p. 24); together with one dubium they make out the 34 poems of the present edition. From the five pieces of the appendix (directed to Janus) one is written by Francesco Durante da Fano, three are written by Tito Vespasiano Strozzi and one by Antonio Costanzi.

⁵ In an earlier short reference (Joannes Pannonius éneke. ItK 10 (1900) 244) Hegedüs mentions Ep. II 24 (see JPO I,1,57) and El. II 18 as the work of Janus.

⁶ Csapodi [20, 79].

⁷ In connection with the Huszti-passage István Borzsák [14, 361] = [56, 543] also mentions this as a work by Janus.

The manuscript and printed tradition

In this section we give a short description of all sources used in the present fascicle. The first part contains the manuscripts in alphabetical order of their sigla, the second the prints in chronological order.

The inventory of manuscripts containing works by Janus Pannonius was most recently compiled by Csaba Csapodi (Cs. 97–100). Since then, of course, further sources have come to light. A significant amount of such information is included in Kristeller [60].

As regards the distribution of sigla, we could not adopt Csapodi's system. The individual sigla (with the exceptions mentioned below) consist of one or two Latin letters. I sought to bring together two contradicting aspects; it was convenient to assign a separate siglum to each of the ca. one hundred codices containing works (also) by Janus Pannonius. Because the letters of the Latin, Greek and Hebrew alphabet put together simply would not have been enough, I adopted the system developed by Lorenzo Minio-Paluello for the Aristoteles Latinus series. Accordingly, to each codex is assigned a combination of a capital and a lower-case Latin letter. Since, however, all combinations were not required, I did not have to use all of the capital letters in the two-letter system, but reserved some of them instead to denote the most frequently cited codices (ABCDEFGHILMORSTUVWX). This enables the critical apparatus to be more concise, and reduces the possibilities of errors. Naturally, I took into account mnemotechnical considerations, especially with the more important manuscripts.

The sigla Ja . . . Jz and Ea . . . Ez have been assigned to printed matter, and in this case the sigla reflect chronological order. The repeated capital letter is usually omitted, thus instead of EdEh, the apparatus will simply have Edh.

When describing the contents of each manuscript or printed book (respectively its part containing works by Janus), we use primarily the traditional numbering of the epigrams by Teleki and Kovásznai, since – being based on B – it reflects closely the order in some of the most important manuscripts.

Regarding this codex I have suggested ([67, 114]) that in the lost first quire the “little brother” of the sixth elegy—a six-line epigram on the death of his mother Barbara—could have had the same position as in the Vatican Codex X. This assumption is confirmed by the Apponyi Codex A in which the epigram appears in a similar place; and the same errors feature in the Apponyi Codex as in the Modena Codex. That would mean, that the lost first quinio contained El. I 6. Epigr. II 1 Tel. = 388 M. El. I 15 and 7,1–70 Tel.

On the next leaf of the codex (30^r) one reads Propertius I 15,8ff. in a different hand (Ferrara, end of the 15th century, see [15, 156]). However, at the bottom of f. 29^v the first three words of Janus’ Epigr. 10,7 M. appear as catchwords, so the manuscript containing Janus’ verses must originally have had a fourth quire, although we cannot determine what it might have contained.

The order of works given above is somewhat misleading. Some poems are written in a clearly different hand, obviously on the free space of some folios: f. 45v (Epigr. II 9), 48v (Epigr. II 3. 1–2 Horváth), 61v (Epigr. II 10–11. 15), 69v–70r (Strozza, Epigr. II 4. 5 Horváth), 106v–107r (El. I 3), 114v–117r (Epigr. II 6–7. 9 Horváth. Epigr. II 12–14. 10 Horváth. Epigr. II 20. Strozza; Nicolaus cantor; Epigr. I 372. 11 Horváth). This hand is quite similar or identical to that of ff. 96–104, containing “foreign” material (to what cf. 11 Horváth).

The codex has been in the possession of Bishop Osvát Thuz (1436–1499), as shown by his arms on f. 106v (Horváth [37, 594] with photo).

Vat. Lat. 2847 consists of three parts.¹⁰ The first (ff. 12–20) and the third (ff. 59–163) overlap in contents: both include elegies I 2–4, 6 and 10–12, on account of which the third part was assigned an independent siglum (see under X).

This first part, like the second, bears a still legible independent earlier leaf numbering, ranging from 1–9. The whole codex used to belong to Angelo Colocci. According to József Huszti, it was he who had the first and third parts copied, but acquired the second part from somebody else.

History of the text editions

The first section of this publication (JPO I,1,28–35) contains a detailed presentation of the editions and the publication history; here we summarize only the facts pertaining to the elegies.

The earliest printed elegy (13 lines from El. II 2 T. = 9 M.) – which is also the earliest text by Janus – was printed in a small group (Ja) of rare incunabula from the low countries, in all likelihood in Janus' lifetime. The author is not indicated, but the manuscript and printing traditions leave no doubt regarding his authorship. The epitaph was composed soon after the death of Andreola (1451), and it can be found in almost a dozen Italian manuscripts.

In another incunabulum (Jf) there is a complete elegy (El. I 1 T. = 19 M.) after the colophon, almost as an addendum. The author and the year of composition (1458) are given.

This elegy is also well-known from Italian manuscripts and became part of the Florentine corpus.

Adrianus Wolfhardus published one of Janus' last elegies written in Hungary (I 14 T. = 32 M.) at the end of a separate volume, the editio princeps of the panegyricus on Guarino (Jn).

In 1513, the following year, Sebastianus Magius Pannonius included both of the elegies that had been published at the time in the volume edited by him (Jo), naturally without the text that was published in the lowlands.¹³ As he notes, he did not have any other texts by Janus: Illud nunc ego (nec importune quidem) dicam, quod Graeculus quidam olim ad Augustum: Plus darem, si plus haberem. Non enim me praeterit his longe plura Ianum nostrum composuisse. Quae (prob pudor) adhuc ab invidis suppressuntur. A year later Benedek Bekény helped to address the paucity of Janus' works. Using other manuscript sources, he published ten elegies (I 1–10 T. = 19–28 M.) in a small volume (Jq) of some four quires. All the manuscripts with which we are familiar containing these elegies (BADOFL and with lacunae MXV) also contain the I 11–12 T. verses as well, so it seems likely that the manuscript used by Bekény and Ioannes Camers must also have contained them. We cannot determine precisely why they were omitted. In any event, the publication strongly resembles the work (Jn) that was issued two years earlier by the same printers (Hieronymus Vietor & Io. Singrenius), and the Munich copy, for instance, is filled with marginal and interlinear commentary.

Beatus Rhenanus' 1518 edition (Jr) added, alongside other things, ten elegies (I 3. 6–7. 9–12. II 1–3 T.) to the Bologna publication. Five years later, however, Adrianus Volphardus (Jx) added five elegies (I 11–15 T.) to the Vienna edition, two of which had not yet been published (the publisher is the same as in the case of Magyi Sebestyén).

Hilarius Cantiuncula's Venetian (Ea, 1553) and Basel publications (Ec, [1555]?) do not include any new material, but they unify the texts of Beatus Rhenanus and Adrianus Volphardus. In 1569 Ioannes Sambucus (Eh) adds, alongside other things, the II 4–18 T. elegies. Of these 15 new elegies, three form parts of a correspondence in verse and were written by T. V. Strozzi (II 5. 7. 9 = App. 2–4 M.). We have categorized one as an epigram (II 13), and one, as was noted above, is not an authentic Janus composition (II 18). Thus Zsámboky published 28 authentic elegies of Janus.

The publication by Sámuel Teleki and Sándor Kovásznai also contains the material from Sambucus' edition, but the 15 elegies from the Vienna codex (B) are given based on the text and order of this manuscript. In their edition these are the I 1–15 elegies. The other elegies are included in another book, as in the case of the epigrams, see JPO I,1,56. They did not know of any manuscript source for these, with the exception of the II 2 elegy. Thanks to the kindness of Dániel Cornides, they received a copy of the Milan manuscript (Za) on the basis of which they published variants of the text (II p. 368).¹⁴

Jenő Ábel published five elegies that had never before been published. He based one of them (6 M.) on another Milan manuscript (Na) and the other four on the third part of the Vatican manuscript (4. 8. 18. 33 M.). We have included one of his six elegies among the epigrams (Ábel p. 127 = Epigr. 213 M.). These are at the moment the last of the elegies to have been found that were either indicated as the work of Janus in existing manuscripts or identified as such by Sambucus on the basis of manuscript sources.

¹³ Ábel and Hegedüs [2, 212–215] republished the introduction and postscript by Sebestyén Magyi.

¹⁴ Dalloul Zaynab's dissertation [24] regrettably was not published in its entirety, but it can be accessed under http://doktori.bibl.u-szeged.hu/999/1/Zaynab_doktori.pdf.

Classification of the textual tradition

The grouping of the elegies

Csaba Csapodi (Cs. 21–25) has provided an essentially accurate summary and explanation of everything that can be established regarding the grouping of the elegies on the basis of the contents of the manuscripts and incunabula.

The manuscripts FLO (and with some lacunae V) contain only the I 1–12 T. = 19–30 M. elegies. We therefore regard them as the Florentine corpus. József Huszti is in all likelihood correct in his contention that this collection was probably compiled by Janus himself in 1466/67 and sent to Marsilio Ficino.¹⁵

The Vienna codex (B) complements the Florentine corpus with the addition of an elegy composed in 1468 and another composed in 1469, as well as a poem that cannot be precisely dated (I 15 = 11 M.).¹⁶ This Buda corpus is included in the Adrianus Volphardus edition (Jx).

The manuscripts A, D, and M can be considered an Italian enlargement of the Florentine corpus, entirely independent of the Buda corpus. With the exception of the Vienna codex, the Thúz codex (T) is the only one that contains each of the I 13–15 elegies, which is not surprising given its origins in Hungary.

The compiler of X was able to do the most wide-ranging collection. With the exception of I 1. 14, II 2 and 11 T., X contains all of the elegies that were in the codices that have been mentioned so far, as well as four others. Of these four, two (18 and 33 M.) are familiar to us from the second Seville codex (S).

The 1569 Sambucus edition (Eh) contains five Italian elegies the manuscript sources for which have not yet been found: II 4. 6. 12. 14 and 17 = 10. 15. 5. 12. and 7 M.

Textual variants

Given the divergences in the various versions of the texts, it is questionable which of the elements of this notion can be confirmed and which are in need of modification. It is important to consider who it was who presented the given text. The chart below offers a summary of this.

Naturally we are able to examine the manuscript tradition only when the given text figures in at least two manuscripts. This is true first and foremost in the case of the first book of the Teleki–Kovásznaï publication.

The list below contains the significant variant readings of the elegies of the first book on which conclusions regarding the relationships of the codices to one another could be drawn. I have provided notes regarding context in brackets.

The Modena Codex

When comparing the alterative readings, one finds several striking concurrences between the M and the X codices. However, starting from the beginning of the Modena Codex (which of the two has the truncated beginning), the order of the entries is the same only for the first three elegies (I 7. 5. 4.). One may well pose the question, can we go any further?

In 1700 L. A. Muratori wrote the following comment on the first page of the Modena codex: Carmina varia eruta e fasciculo reperto in Archivo Ducali, et in unum compacta; Pleraque Antonio Tehbaldeo (!) celebri Poetae Ferrarensi adscribenda esse arbitror.

Huszti's attention was drawn to the codex by a reference in the secondary literature, and Juhász examined it more thoroughly.¹⁷ The Janus texts begin with the 71. line of the I 7 elegy. Juhász astutely presumed that the copy contained the sixth elegy as well, in addition to the beginning of the seventh elegy, since this would make the collection of 12 elegies complete. The number of missing lines, including the titles (since in this codex the elegies included the customary titles), is roughly 246, or five-and-a-half folios. If, however, we examine the photographs of the leaves containing the Janus texts (ff. 10–29), it is clear that the 20 existing leaves comprise two regular quinio (in other words a quire that consists of 5 double-pages) of identical size.

The first surviving quire contains 20–24 lines per page, in total (including the empty lines) roughly 446 (this is an approximate number because the copyist did not always stick to the register). If we consider the Vatican codex (X) as our basis of comparison, the 15. elegy (Threnos in Racacinium Cubicularium) might have figured between the sixth and the seventh. Thus the lost quire would have contained 440 lines. It is thus likely that the “younger sibling” of the sixth elegy, the six-line epigram written on the occasion of the death of his mother, Barbara (epigr. 304 M.), was in the place indicated in the Vatican codex. One finds confirmation of this conclusion in the Apponyi codex, in which the epigram is in the same place. The codex itself also contains mistakes similar to those in the Modena Codex.

Assessing the textual variations

The I 1 elegy has the richest tradition, so it offers a suitable starting point for our examinations. The absence of lines 15–16 offers evidence of the common origins of the codices of the elegy collection (SBVAOMDFLJq). Initially these two lines were only found in the sporadic tradition, i.e. in manuscripts that contained no other texts by Janus apart from this one (NdesPeYmpJo).¹⁸ However, Qp and Jr show the fusion of the two branches. The mistake in line 15 suggests that it is likely that Rhenanus (Jr) was familiar with and relied on the publication by Sebestyén Magyi (Jo). The mistake in line 23 indicates that Adrianus Volphardus (Jx) drew on the work of Benedek Bekény (Jq). No manuscript sources have been found for Hilarius Cantiuncula's (Ea) reading of tu rapidis (l. 32), so we can regard it as a (baseless) conjecture.¹⁹ Perhaps he found the expression morosus morbus strange, though it can be found in Ovid (ars 2,323) and even in another passage of Janus (eleg. I 10,23). It seems that Cantiuncula contaminated the readings of Jr and Jx. The title is from Jr, but the mistake in line 23 is perhaps from Jx. Our understandable hopes and expectations notwithstanding, the verse is not in the X codex. Surprisingly, at the top of the back side of the page containing the end of El. I 11 (according to the new numbering, 105^v), one sees the title, cut a bit by the book binder: [. . ?]Del fonte narniensi nonis Iunjs in reditu (?) / ex urbe / Nayadum italicarum principi diuae feroniae Ianus pannonus. (Many other titles were written in the same hand, for instance

¹⁷ JUHÁSZ: Commentatio [49, 16 and 22] and the Juhász bequest H 287/3/l.

¹⁸ In the Ne codex f. 90r the entire elegy can be read, in addition f. 101v the first eight lines separately. Although Ns is a late manuscript, it is not a copy of some early print, but seems to be close to the group NdPeYp.

¹⁹ Cf. Ammianus 26,4,4: constricti rapidis febris.

f. 75r, 102r, 109r). The rest of the page is empty, and the next elegy (Ábel 129–130 = 4 M.) begins on a new page.

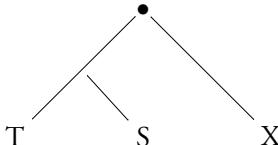

The variants that are available for comparison are sufficient neither in quantity nor in quality to permit us to establish the precise relationship between the codices containing a collection of elegies. The conclusions that are ventured below should therefore be understood as cautious hypotheses, not compellingly documented facts. The readings in eleg. I 1–8 are essentially consistent. The two Florentine codices contain the same errors, and L was dismissed by Ábel as not worthy of regard: it has many errors in common with F (7,26. 64), and “it is impossible to say precisely what is in the manuscripts, primarily in the questionable parts of the text.”²⁰ It is even possible that it is simply a copy of F. O seems to bear the most similarity to them (4,10), and AD may be a related pair (2,8. 4,6. 3,5). In the latter passage V shares the presumably secondary reading – it would be difficult to believe that BTMSX all contain the same error. In another branch TM (5,39. 44) and SX (3,21. 5,37) contain strikingly characteristic shared mistakes. 3,20 is the same in the case of all four codices, and V agrees, so we should assume that there is some contamination in the case of this codex. In spite of the fact that V and X are at the moment two different parts of the same volume, on the basis of its contents V can be situated more closely to the ADOFL group than the TMSX group. Passages in which some of the latter four codices do not contain the given text (4,15. 21. 6,76. 126) can be considered shared mistakes of this group. The text of Rhenanus (Jr) bears some affinity with this group (3,20. 6,76. 126. 7,77), while on the other hand Jq bears affinities with the Buda codex (6,19. 137. 7,43. 8,19).

If our conclusions are sound, then a trifurcation can be found at the peak. This is remarkably rare. However, it is more likely in the case of a Humanist text than in the case of a text from Antiquity.²¹ The significant divergence in the case of the ninth elegy is surprising: on the basis of the above, one would expect the common errors of ST to be present in MX as well. However, this is not the case. Notwithstanding the length of the text, often only ST contain the same mistakes (9, 2. 5. 35. 77. 99. 100), and of the other two codices only X agrees (9,3. 53. 57. 69. 70). In the case of this elegy, M shows correspondences with O ((9,44. 91; compare with 8,114?!)). The right side of the previous stemma thus would change as follows:

²⁰ ÁBEL: Analecta 16.

²¹ On this question see Paul MAAS: Textkritik, Leipzig, 1960⁴, 29–30.

In the case of the I 10–15 elegies, the number of characteristic variants and manuscripts available for comparison is small(er).

Of the I 10–12 elegies, not one is contained in the Seville codices. The relationship between the codices MX is like in elegies I 1–8. The variant in 12,2 would not be sufficient for one to hypothesize a divergent stemma. Regrettably, the Cambridge Codex associated with Battista Guarino contains very few texts, and the variants in 11,62 are hard to assess. Qg's readings – as one might expect on the basis of the copyist – are generally good, and the other codices do not contain significant errors (with the exception of MX).

In the 13. elegy, the large lacuna clearly demonstrates the special position of SX, and this again is in no way in contradiction with the case of the 1–8 elegies.

The only thing that can be established in the case of the 14. elegy, which is short, is that Jnor copied each other, while Jx has a better text than they do; the prints do not contain the mistakes found in T.

Finally, in the 15. elegy AX embarks down a characteristically separate path. Because of the truncated nature of the Modena codex we do not know its variants, but it may well have been similar to X. In the case of the first book such a situation is not observed elsewhere, but we do find A(M)X correspondences in the Andreola epitaph. It is worth noting that an analysis of the variants of the Panegyricus in Guarinum yields similar results. Here on the one hand AXYa (Ya = cod. Venetus Marcianus 4100 (XII,135)) are closely interconnected, while on the other BST, in other words the Seville codices diverge from the AXYa group associated with Battista Guarino also in the case of the Guarino-panegyricus and agree with the Buda codex. The difference, however, is not due simply to corruption of the text. Rather it may be a case of different recensions: AXYa is an earlier and quite certainly Italian redaction, while BST is the result of a later reworking, admittedly only slight in scale. This reminds us that even in a single codex the interconnections can be disparate and dissimilar in different works, resp. in the case of elegies in their different groups.

As a scholar who had long dreamed of such an occasion, Csaba Csapodi was filled with understandable excitement and enthusiasm by the discovery of the Seville codices. He suggested that the codices might well have belonged to Janus and the revisions, or at least some of them, might well be the work of his hand. This conjecture was met with some skepticism among Hungarian academics. István Kapitánffy considered it highly unlikely.²²

Regarding the general quality of the Seville codices, if the conclusions we discussed earlier are accurate, then in the stemma of the text of the I 1–9 elegies they are not closer to the archetype than any of ADOFMX. This fact reminds us that we must be cautious in our assessment of any of the variants of the Seville codices that vary significantly from the textual tradition. It is not difficult to imagine that these variants emerged simply because it was seen as necessary to correct a line that was clearly an instance of textual corruption, but the correction was based purely on conjecture and the scriptor(s) of the Seville codices happened to have such “corrected” copies as their exemplar. Furthermore, its relatively late date notwithstanding, the Buda codex contains the most authentic version of the text of the poems.

²² István KAPITÁNFFY [53]. Ferenc CSONKA [23] also refutes Csaba Csapodi's hypotheses, as does Miklós BODA [10, 480sqq.] = [11, 85sqq.]. János Bollók agreed to this view, too.

Correspondence with Antonio Costanzi

We examine two textual variations of the 8. elegy of the I. book that are not included in the notes given above.

The I 8 elegy is a reply to the letter sent by Antonius Constantius Fanensis to King Matthias. The reply was written by Janus in the name of the king, and as Huszti writes, “it is far superior to Antonio Costanzi’s poem, both with regards to form and content.”²³

Scholars have long been familiar with Janus’ half of the correspondence, and of course on the basis of his letters we could draw very precise conclusions regarding the content of the verse by the Italian poet: he praises King Matthias and exhorts him to continue the struggle against the Turks, as this is in the interests of his homeland as well:

Desere ne Italiā dira atque infanda timentem, consilioque illam, praesidioque iuva (93–94).

Oh no, do not abandon us, see how the people of Ausonia tremble and fear,

Defend them with your strong arm, defend them with counsel too.²⁴

István Hegedüs published the poem by Costanzi that initiated the exchange of letters with Janus. He based the text on the bequest of Ábel without, however, having been able to identify Ábel’s manuscript source. In the same year that he translated the poem, however, he consulted with Csontosi János. He named four manuscripts that contain the text, one in Mölk, one in Olmütz, one in Seithenstatt and one in Florence. In Hegedüs’s view, in all likelihood the latter was Ábel’s source. Csontosi’s expertise was remarkable to say the least, especially if one considers that he had far fewer resources than scholars do today (the first three codices, for instance, were described by Kristeller as well).

József Koller also referred to the Melk codex.²⁵ In 1929 Juhász seems to have failed to notice the Olmütz codex. It was discovered and thoroughly studied by Adrienne Fodor.²⁶

Juhász looked in vain for the codex of the Benedictine Abbey of Seitenstetten.²⁷ According to a postcard found in his bequest (H 287/3/w), in reply to his inquiry he was informed that József Satinober had purchased it and then passed it on to someone else. According to Kristeller’s comment, which is discrete but not entirely accurate, the manuscript was “missing.” It was not unheard of at the time for monks to feel compelled to sell valuable possessions. As recently came to light, for years it was kept in a private collection that was not regarded as significant, and it was purchased by the Austrian National Library in 1994.

In the two known Florentine elegy codices Costanzi’s verse is not included. We do not know what manuscript Csontos was referring to.

Of the three known codices, Ábel’s transcription reflects readings of the Olmütz codex very precisely. It even includes corrections of mistakes that were made by the first hand in the course of the process of copying. Thus it is almost certain that the Olmütz codex was Ábel’s source. Hegedüs’ publication of the text is of course not without errors. Some of these he seems to have corrected without acknowledging them in the course of translating (the occasion of the translation was the unveiling of the Matthias statue in the city of Kolozsvár, today Cluj, in 1903).

²⁶ FODOR [30].

²⁷ The first commentary in Hungary, Csontosi MKSzle 1883, 211. Manuscript of miscellaneous contents (shelfmark: 298), six leaves of which contain Costanzi’s verse and reply. KRISTELLER: III. 54.

The manuscripts in this case are almost entirely uniform in the two places below. The prints, beginning with the Vienna print, contain striking discrepancies:

8,89 Improba conventus Germania cogit inanes cett. : Proxima JqxEach

8,132 (Ipsa autem nunquam favit Germania nobis) quin potius votis obstitit illa meis cett. : cum tamen (heu) regno iuncta sit illa meo JqxEach

According to Benedek Bekény's dedication addressed to István Werbőczy in the Vienna edition, Quae inquam carmina ob incuriae calamitatem cicatricibus duriusculis scabebant; praestantissimi attamen viri praceptorisque iucundissimi, Joannis Camertis sacerrimae theologiae professoris inclytissimi cura usque adeo pristinae excellentiae redacta sunt, ut non secus resonare videantur, quam si emunctae naris auctor mundissimo ore delicataque Camoena circum serpentis rivuli marginem reboaret.²⁸ Or as Camers writes: Has ... elegias ... ita depravatas multilasque accepimus, ut in locis plurimis vix earum sensus integer posset percipi. Deditus tamen amore tui operam, ut eo nitore, quo a vate Iano conscriptae sunt, ab his qui docta cupiunt, legerentur.²⁹

Clearly in the two passages cited above we are dealing with a case of deliberate intervention by Camers, not merely the whims of chance. Today we could say that we are reading politically correct textual variations, instead of Janus' outspoken style.³⁰

Abbreviations

For the ancient authors see the Index of the Thesaurus linguae Latinae.

In the main text of the edition the Leiden system is used.

Works of Janus are usually cited without his name, and according to the edition of Teleki and Kovásznai.

Where possible, text editions are cited with item number, followed by the abbreviation of the name of the editor. However, some publications, notably that of Ábel, have no resp. only partially numbered the poems, and therefore are cited with page number. In the case of short epigrams we allocate also a ‘subnumber’, i.e. 98/1 Á. means the first poem which begins on page 98. If the author name precedes the number, then it is always page number, so I 372 Tel. means (epigr.) book I item 372, while Tel. I 631 means volume I page 631 in Teleki–Kovásznai.

+	addit / addunt
/	new line in the manuscript or print
()	round brackets are used to complete abbreviated words
[]	square brackets enclose lost letters
[[]]	double square brackets enclose erased letters
]	a right square bracket closes the lemma
{ }	hooked brackets enclose letters in the manuscript(s) to be omitted
 ⟨ ⟩	angled brackets enclose letters left out by the scriptor(s)

Illos felices, illos reor esse beatos ante omnes, qui nunc rus geniale colunt.
 An quid dulce magis est rure? Molestior urbs est, rure manet Genius, semper ab urbe fugit.
 4a Vestro igitur peior noster status esse videtur
 4b et nihil in sese commoditatis habens.
 5 Vos nunc aut canibus lepores agitatis odoris,
 6 ast ego continue γράμμασιν invigilo.
 9 Aut pingues turdos iucunda fallitis arte,
 10 ast ego continue γράμμασιν invigilo.
 7 Aut lentis virides peragratis passibus agros,
 8 ast ego continue γράμμασιν invigilo.
 11 Vos iocus et ludus, vos blanda fronte voluptas,
 vos requies et pax, vos comitatur amor.
 Adsunt conspicuae formoso corpore Nymphae, quae vobis possunt oscula multa dare.
 15 Vos bene potatis, vos pingues manditis escas,
 inde premunt mollem corpora vestra thorum.
 Ambo igitur superum merito scandetis Olympum:
 hoc mercedis habet, qui bene semper agit.

 opto nimis vestra commoditate frui.
 O si Pegaseis liquido ferar aethere pennis,

 Quis prohibet plures cera me iungere pennas,
 et iunctas humeris applicuisse meis?
 25 Hoc tuus, ut memorant, certe pater, Icare, fecit, et cur plus nobis ingeniosus erat?
 Atlantis facunde nepos, sate Pleiade pulchra, aliger aligero qui pede carpis iter;
 oro tuas nobis pennas concede parumper,

 a quorum numero me procul esse velim.
 Ipse Deus fertur lectum statuisse iugalem,

 Ergo et Romulidis sacratae vincula taedae,

 Iure tua est igitur cuivis laudanda voluntas,

Iure fuit nobis meliore notanda lapillo, iure beata fuit, Bartholomaee, dies,
 quae nos alitibus faustis et sidere dextro
 notitiae primos fecit habere gradus,

 quem faciam, quanti dicere lingua nequit.
 Hunc ego nec claris dubitem praeferre smaragdis,
 quos legit in rubro gurgite nudus Arabs;
 hunc ego congesti praepono montibus auri,
 10 quos habuit Croesus, quos Phrygis aula Midae;
 hoc sine flos nobis violae puteret olenitis,

Istuc Pierides, istuc transibit Apollo 70 et cum thysigero docta Minerva deo.
 Istuc incipiam mansuras quaerere laudes,
 ut clarus titulis multa per ora volem.
 Sed quid me famae tenet ambitiosa cupidus?
 Irrita de stolido peccatore cura cadat.
 Iam Verona parens nos ornat honoribus amplis,
 75 quos nec Thespiades promeruere deae.
 Sit tibi propitius cum divis omnibus aether,
 sit pro collatis gratia magna bonis!
 Te celebres nostrae fiunt praecone Camenae,
 80 per te nostra satis Musa favoris habet.
 At quae pro meritis referam tibi commoda tantis?
 Unica pro rebus reddere verba pudet;
 reddere verba pudet, sed verba rependere oportet:
 haec vis in nostro peccatore sola viget.
 Deme labris linguam, remanebit inutile corpus,
 85 debilis et nullis usibus aptus ego.
 Scilicet Eoas vagus offert navita merces, offert picturas pingere docta manus,
 Cui satis est auri, tribuendo est largus in auro,
 90 cui satis est pecoris, molle dat ille pecus.
 Pampineis dulces mittit de vitibus uvas,
 cui bona Baccheas vinea fundit opes;
 arboreos fetus mittit cum suavibus herbis,
 messibus his si quem fertilis *(h)*ortus alit;

 Ipse fui aspectus ausus adire tuos,
 et me, qua reliquos, regum placidissime, fronte
 excipis, et dulces fundis ab ore sonos.
 Quando loqui volui, pro voto cuncta loquebar,
 25 et tua erat verbis auris aperta meis.
 Obtuleram, quae sunt a paupere dona ferenda;
 quantula erant, vidi grata fuisse tamen.
 Verum, quae tandem meritorum summa tuorum
 erga me fuerit, commemorare iuvat.
 30 Optavi medicas perdiscere saepius artes,
 quae multum ante omnes utilitatis habent.
 Opto, sed est nostris paupertas invida votis,
 et nullo tenuis asse crumena tumet.
 Me tua sancta manus largo relevavit egentem

Quippe emptis, rex magne, tuo fruor aere libellis,
 o rex caelitibus aequiparande deis,
 et tua quot(t)idie foribus stat aperta reclusis
 ingredienda meo bibliotheca pede.
 40 Nec tua Lethaeas fluitant benefacta per undas, nec nant a rapidis per freta rapta Notis.
 Vel lux est, vel nox, et nocte et luce laboreo,
 ingratae mentis ne reus esse ferar.
 Ut per multa tuam producant saecula vitam,
 45 quod possum superos supplice voce rogo.
 Cum nequeam dignas verbis persolvere grates,
 est saltem meritis mens mea grata tuis.
 Est, et semper erit, donec mea vita sub auras
 evolet, et flamma totus edace cremer, 50 plus ego Tithono quamvis et Nestore vivam,
 et mea praetereat saecula terna colus.
 Ante Padus gelidas cursum reflectet ad Alpes, ante petet vetitum Parrhasis Ursa mare,
 quam ccesset mea Musa tuas percurrere laudes,
 55 et te, qua poterit, concelebrare lyra.
 Praecipias: saevis pro te freta turbida ventis
 ingrediar, telis pectora nuda dabo, Scyllam atque adversam Scyllae haud horrebo Charybdim, et quas eruat Sicelis Aetna faces.

Vox fuit Octobris: ‘Quotiens me signa reducent, aut sere Palladias, aut lege cultor opes.’
 ‘Nec mea’, respondit, ‘spernuntur dona,’ November,
 20 ‘si suibus glandes, ligna ministro focis.’
 Pauca December ad haec certe festiva profatur:
 ‘Horreo, sed Genio frigora nostra calent.’
 Post hunc ambiguo proclamat gutture Ianus continuas aevi se renovare vices.
 25 Ultimus antiquis certo a purgamine dictus
 haec et tot, memini si bene, verba dedit:
 ‘Qui Ladislai regis natalibus ornor,
 ut iam praeteream cetera, nonne sat est?’
 Sic fato crines Titan stellante corona 30 cingit, et id nutu comprobat alma soror.

 doctrinae fateor munus id esse tuae.
 Per te concendi celsas Heliconis in arces,
 Gorgonei fontem pes ubi rupit equi.
 Per te Parnasi peragradi rosida Tempe,
 10 tu monitor, tu dux, tuque magister eras.
 Accipe nunc carmen, quod nobis ante dedisti,
 collati fructum muneris, auctor, habe.
 Par est, ut carpat de palmite vinitor uvas;
 cultori messem reddere debet ager.
 15 Et iam ut propositas exordiar edere laudes:
 imprimis patriae nobilitate nites.
 Nemo adeo est amens, quin Umbros praeferat agros omnibus Italiae fertilitate locis;
 nec quoque gauderet se hac gente Propertius ortum, 20 ni studio belli, ni foret apta togae.

 Nam, simulac teneri permisit flosculus aevi, coepisti Musis invigilare sacris.
 Donasti viridem castris tamen inde iuuentam,
 et satis hac etiam parte peritus eras.
 35 Rursus te saevis studium revocavit ab armis, et tibi Thespiaenum signa ferenda dedit.
 Nec te militiae miror tentasse laborem:
 Herculeo dignum robore corpus habes.
 Praecipue fortē scis exercere palaestram,

 Sed non est tantum robusto in corpore laudis,
 ingenio quantus semper habetur honos.
 Hoc te Bellonae suasit praeferre Minervam,

- 70 Nec me alius docuit, soleo quod saepe fateri,
 apta in legitimos cogere verba pedes.
 Nunc, quoniam vates inter numerare vetustos,
 imbutus monitis glorior esse tuis.
 Et merito; nam te fingendi carminis artem
 callidius quovis iudice nemo tenet.
 75 Singula tu proprias servare vocabula vires

- Sic, tanquam nobis Iunonia temperet Hebe, quod potat sumpta Iuppiter ambrosia.
 Haec nos credulitas et terris iactat et undis,
 haec nostrae sortis nos meminisse vetat.
 45 Ille perosus humum pelago natat, aequoris alter impatiens arvis applicat arva novis.
 Hunc levis ambitio tumidum popularibus auris
 ventilat, in ferrum ferreus ille ruit.
 Exsecat hic montes, et culmina nubibus altis
 50 inserit: ad superos scandere velle putes.
 Interea totum Somni germana per orbem haud ulli late conspicienda volat, sternit et incautas nullo discrimine gentis
 nativa immitti vincula falce metens.
 55 Nec nitida specie viridiue aetate movetur,
 non fortem ignavo serius illa rapit.
 Nirea Thersitae, Paridem sed iungit Achilli,
 Troilus et tremulum mittitur ante patrem.
 Hic, hic, funereos qui nunc effertur ad ignes,
 60 quam modo robustus, quam modo sanus erat!
 Non illo duras quisquam insertare palaestras aptior, aut agili ducere frena manu.

 quae replent Erebum, bella geruntur equis.
 115 Hoc genus effecit, caderet ter ut Ilia tellus,

Tu mea plectra move, dignis ut versibus aequem
 sponsorum laudes, tu mea plectra move.
 Te duce, pulcher Hymen, Matthaeo iungitur Herbae
 10 Costabilis casto casta puella viro.
 Ambo pares, ambo multa virtute decentes:
 congruit hic nuptae, congruit illa viro.
 Sive velis formam sanctosque requirere mores,
 praestat et illa nurus, praestat et ille viros, 15 sive domos veteres et stemmata noscere mavis,
 nobile sponsa genus, nobile sponsus habet,
 demum sive genus maternum, sive paternum
 quaeras, et matre est, et generosa patre.
 Ipse etiam amborum vir nobilitate parentum
 20 pollet, et antiquis inclytus extat avis.
 Patria non eadem est: Ferraria protulit illam, anguigerae pater huic urbis alumnus erat.
 Una puellarum formas supereminet omnes,
 postquam in virgineo constitut apta choro.
 25 Non aliter, totum cum plena receperit orbem, condit fraternalis obvia luna rotas.
 Ne tamen ignores, cuius sit nata parentis:
 Costabilis genuit Bartholomaeus eam,
 vir gravis et prudens, fortis moderator et aequus,
 30 multum principibus gratus et inde suis.

Cum foret orator Venetam legandus in urbem anguigerum ducem, Bartholomaeus erat.
 Omnes vero, quibus Ferraria pulchra superbit,
 Costabilem notum est exsuperare domos.
 35 Sive vetustatem grandesve requiris alumnos,
 haec vetus, haec claris est generosa viris,
 sed mora longa foret percurrere singula verbis,
 nec caperet tantum grande volumen opus.
 Finem igitur faciam, videar ne longior aequo:
 40 sermonem longum non amat hora brevis.
 Ante tamen, cui terra, fretum, cui sidera parent,
 supplice communem voce rogabo Deum,
 sospitet ut nuptam tranquilla pace virumque,
 et duo cara bona pectora iungat ave.

 Vir locuples, facilis, iustus, sectator honesti,

 fundit non parca munera multa manu.
 Hunc autem genuit, talique superbit alumno

 Iam bis centenos exegit Cynthius orbes, ut liquit patrium seditione solum.
 25 Pars inde anguigeram, pars hanc migravit in urbem, ornavitque altis oppida bina viris.
 Sunt sibi tot clari tanta de stirpe propinqui,
 sunt Priamus, fratres, Laomedonque sibi.
 E quibus ille reos, aegrotos iste tuetur;
 30 has illis artes magnus Apollo dedit.
 Nec, quod ter denos sponsus transegerit annos,

 haec est conveniens taedis genit{t}alibus aetas,
 haec extrema fugit, temperiemque tenet.

 Nunc sponsae ad dotes animos convertite vestros,

 5 Si quem sensisset de se Maro tanta sonantem,

At non esse tuam tam prava mente puellam,
 et bene te mores nosse loquere suos.
 Non erat Aeolidae coniunx suspecta marito,
 60 induit arma tamen proditione sua.
 Nec te securum tanto in discrimine praesta,
 nec nimium dominae credulus esse velis.
 Quae minime sperant, freta sunt infesta carinis;
 qui minime rentur, piscibus esca nocet.
 65 Dum secura sedet ramo super arboris ales,
 aspicit implicitos aucupis arte pedes.
 Dum penitus misso gaudebat laeta timore,
 capta fuit Graio Dardana Troia dolo.
 Excute de digitis malesanae dona puellae,
 70 excute: amara sub hoc melle venena latent.
 Quis demens adeo, quis tam vesanus et excors,
 ut velit in proprium ferre venena caput?
 Fac tamen occultis ea dona carere venenis,
 at magicum certe carmen habere queunt, 75 quod te posse aliam quamvis adamare puellam,
 et, quam nunc ardes, deseruisse vetet.
 Infelix, cura torquebere semper eadem,
 et nulla aeternum finiet hora malum.
 Cantatas alio transferre vatabere flamas;
 80 sic semper turpis te retinebit amor.

Et cum legitimas poscent sua tempora taedas,
 tardabit iustas fax in honesta faces.
 At nec Sisyphidem Circe nec Iasona Colchis carminibus potuit detinuisse suis:
 85 sic erat in fatis; tenuisset Iasona Colchis, Sisyphidem Circe: tres vetuere deae.
 Tu bene per magicas in amore teneberis herbas,
 nec tu Parcarum stamine tutus eris.
 Aspice, Thessalicis sit quanta potentia succis;
 90 carmina ne tantum iuris habere neges.
 Carmine sol pallet, traducunt carmina messes,
 et te de caelo carmina, luna, trahunt.
 Haec stellas fuscant, nebulas ex aethere pellunt,
 his pluviae in terras vel sine nube cadunt.
 95 Carmine terra tremet, iuvenescet carmine Nestor, carmine tranquillum, cum tumet, aequor erit.
 Eliciunt manes, refrenant flumina cantus,
 et faciunt hominem protinus esse lupum.
 Hae te non poterunt artes in amore tenere,
 100 quae caelum, terras, aequora tota tenent?
 Pone, quod hoc donum nullum cum carmine virus
 portet; ut amoveas, altera causa monet.

Tu potes hoc longe melius decurrere campo,
 nam tuus in stadio saepe cucurrit equus.
 Neve externa sequar, pelago dare vela propinquo
 incipe et Estenses tollere ad astra viros.
 200 Quorum qui nunc sunt, populos in pace gubernant;
 et Musas, et te, pulcher Apollo, colunt.
 Hos toga deleat, Martem coluere priores, et bello magnum promeruere decus.
 205 ‘Quamvis materiam domus haec celeberrima praebet, sive velis Martem dicere, sive togam,
 at desunt vires numeris, nec credere sese

 Solve ratem, curret; nervos intende, valebunt;
 210 inceptis aderit Calliopea tuis.
 Quid tamen ingenio valeas, bene novimus omnes,
 tu fingis Clario carmina digna deo.
 ‘At sine me paulum tantis praeludere rebus,
 ut sternant magnis metra minora viam.’
 215 Labuntur sensim, dum te praeludere fingis, tempora; sic aetas praeterit omnis iners.

10 Lentum appellabam quondam, nunc fingere miror tam cito tam cultos te potuisse modos.
 Si vel septenos esses cunctatus in annos, ignavi nomen vix subiturus eras.
 Ah, nimis argute blandum defendis amorem;
 dispeream si iam crimen amare puto.
 15 Quantum non ulli vates habuere vetusti, tantum dicendi, tu Tite, robur habes.
 Aegrius humanas siquidem crudelibus iras
 frangi posse feris, multa pericla docent.
 Non potuit Bacchus, placavit Cerberon Orpheus:
 20 asperior monstro barbara turba fuit.
 Non potuit nautas, flexit delphinias Arion:
 piscis opem tribuit, cui nocuere viri.
 Iam video, nil est sermone potentius ipso,
 iam video, nimium lingua diserta valet.
 25 En ego, qui fueram Veneris durissimus hostis, cedo, relanguescit spiritus ille meus.
 Haud tamen idcirco similes delabar in ignes, invidiam fuerit deposuisse satis.
 28a Nec reor indignum tanto cessisse poetae,
 28b cui similem nullum saecula nostra ferunt.
 28c Saepe pudor victi vincentis honore levatur,
 28d nec turpe est magnis succubuisse viris.

 29 Sed te quis divum docuit tam nobile carmen?
 30 Quis tibi dictavit? Phoebus Amorve fuit?
 Discipulum teneri iam me profitebor Amoris,
 si tam facundos efficit ille sonos.
 Haec tenus alterno decuit contendere versu,

 35 Exin pacifero placidus me carmine visas,
 et crebro a nobis te patiare legi.
 Quippe tuas quanti faciam, doctissime, Musas,

 Ipse ego contineo conantem erumpere vocem,
 40 ne qua blandiri me tibi forte putas.
 At tu cum molli velox genitrix Cupido, figite de nostra nulla trophyea fuga.
 Quod cessi, haud ideo laetos agitate triumphos,
 nec vestros currus florea sarta tegant.
 45 Non me captivum, sed amicum ex hoste parastis, pacem vobiscum conciliatus ago.

5 Tantus – vix recolo – vestra olim signa subivi,

5 Tolle sitim; saevis tulerat Langia Pelasgis, quae nostra exurit pe^ctora, tolle sitim.
 Sic tibi magna parens alimenta aeterna ministret,
 sic nunquam vena pauperiore fluas!
 En semel, en iterum, quos ferrea fistula fundit,
 10 excipiunt latices guttura sicca tuos.
 O quantus rediit membris vigor, o mea quanto
 viscera divinus liberat igne liquor!
 Nec venter quamvis repetito immurmurat haustu,
 sudorem subitum nec gravis humor agit.
 15 Ergo operae nobis pretium fuit alta labantis ad iuga clivoso tramite ferre gradus.
 Iam libet et pulchram mirari turribus arcem,
 quae surgit sanctis proxima gurgitibus,
 audire et strepitum, quem subter valle profunda 20 spumea sulfurei fluminis unda facit, ac totos circumlustrare ex ordine montis,
 pura salutiferi quos fovet aura poli.

 salve iterum e Latiis longe celeberrima Nymphis, 30 hospitis et grati suscipe dona libens.
 Tu placidam miseris requiem mortalibus affers

Fert clypeus talos, dat pocula cassis, et altum

10 Cetera caeruleam Noctis variantia pallam praestriktum radiis occuluere iubar.
 Una tamen longe reliquis audacior astris contempto Phoebi stella nitore micat.
 Quantus conspicuo rutilans fulgore cometes
 nuntiat horrenda bella cruenta iuba.
 15 Sed tu – sive Iovem mavis te forte vocari, grata est Idaliae seu tua flamma deae,
 sive novum caelo modo te deus addidit ignem, ac solis fessae iussit adesse faci –
 felix cui soli fas est haud cedere Phoebo, 20 non tantum noctis quae potes esse decus, nil dirum, nil triste feras, sed lumine dextro
 pelle procul quicquid fata sinistra parant.
 Saturni tu frigus iners, tu Martis iniqui ardores placida corrige temperie.
 25 Perfice ne terris noceant Arcturus et Haedus, Arcturus ventis saevior, Haedus aquis.
 Grandine flaventes ne pulset Scorpius uvas,
 ne segetes nimio torreat igne Canis.

Neu miseros turbet nautas nimbosus Orion,
 30 Orion clava, nec minus ense ferox.
 Sed pius insanis defendat Castor ab undis, limite quas certo duxerit Ursa rates.
 Semina centeno reddat cum fenore tellus,
 unda ferat pisces, aura salubris aves.
 35 Per te vexato redeat concordia mundo,
 Ianus et aeterna comprimat arma sera.
 Esto quidem late populis tu prospera cunctis,
 sed magis afflictas respice Pannonias:
 verte pharetratos Phryxi trans aequora Turcos,
 40 quos male nunc Hister submovet amne suo.
 Fac regem observent proceres, rex ipse fideli
 consilio procerum se regat et patriam.
 Omnia sic roseis cedant tibi sidera flammis,

tantum nostra suem fudit pagana iuventus:
 vix capiunt vastam stridula plaustra feram.
 5 Haec Meleagro poterat procumbere ferro,
 haec erat Herculea bellua digna manu.
 Aspice curvatos alte duo fulmina dentes,
 aspice saetosae spicula densa iubae!
 Abrupit quam saepe plagas! Quam saepe morantes
 10 turbidus obliquo discidit ore canes!
 Non illi solae praebabant pabula silvae,
 nec quae de patulis glans cadit illicibus:
 arva diu miseri flebant populata coloni,
 saevior haec omni grandine pestis erat.
 15 Sed iam securos resonet pastoria cantus
 fistula, respirant pascua, rura, greges.
 Nunc etiam timuisse iuvat cessante periculo:
 dulce est praeteritos commemorare metus.
 Macte animi, dirum primus qui figere monstrum

Ecce sed ingentem pubes fert altera cervum,
 Silvia, qualis erat, vel Cyparisse, tuus.
 25 Ardua bis denis assurgunt cornua ramis

 Iam fecunda foveat centesima semina tellus, iam posuit totidem vinea laeta comas,
 postquam hunc solliciti longe mirantur agrestes 30 ducere cornigerum per nemora alta pecus.
 Taedia nam longi quotiens persenserat aevi,
 noverat anguineo se renovare cibo.
 Nec modo velocias captum stravere Molossi,
 aut tenuere suam linea texta fugam:
 35 quamvis alta levi superabat retia saltu ocior aligero Bellerophontis equo;
 sed magno e silvis actus clamore sequentum
 incidit in fragili stagna adoperta gelu.
 Hic saepe incassum surgenti et saepe cadenti
 40 succidit celeres lubrica testa pedes.
 Sic tandem victus toto dedit altera pago
 gaudia, quae pariter contulit una dies.

Una dies multos olim recolenda per annos,
quam niveus prisco signet honore lapis.
45 Hanc vos unanimi mecum celebrate, sodales,
dum favet hinc aetas, hinc genialis hiems.
Dilutae Baccho fugiant ante omnia curae:
ille potest maestos exhilarare deus.

Quid querar? Unde novo quaeram fomenta dolori?
Ecce iacet lacrimis mater humanda meis.
Ergo erit ista dies nobis, dum vita manebit,
semper acerba licet, rite colenda tamen,
5 sive illam Libyco longe deprensus in aestu,
sive Lycaonio sidere pressus agam.
Nam, quotiens agilis sese converterit annus,
nostra recrudescat tempore plaga suo,
admonitus plangam, pietas renovabit honorem,
10 maesta pius tumulo munera reddet honos.

Atra dies, Nonas sequeris quae quinta Decembres, accipe non albae tristia signa notae.
 Turbidior nobis caligine noctis opacae
 semper eris, puro tu licet igne mices, 15 quoniam nunc etiam non laeta luce coruscas,
 sed nigris horres concolor exequiis.
 Aethereos tractus radiis impervia nubes
 abstulit, et nebulis obsita terra latet.
 Talibus officiis talis bene convenit aér:
 20 non sunt funereis apta serena rogis.
 Nec gravis hoc egit nimboris flatibus Auster:
 ipsa ultro nostris addolet aura malis.
 Tu vero nimium nobis infense December,
 cur totiens in me perfida bella moves?
 25 Nonne semel rapto tibi me laesisse Guarino
 sat foret? En iterum vulnera nostra novas!
 Ultime bis senis rapidi de fratribus anni,
 invidiose viris, invidiose deis.
 Tu damno lucis nocturnas porrigis horas, 30 ducis et exiguo tramite solis equos;
 tu pigro informem contristas frigore mundum,
 exuis et campos gramine, fronde nemus.
 Mense tuo nec prata greges viridantia tondent,
 nec leve sub foliis garrula cantat avis.

 Te quondam Genio sacravit vana vetustas,
 at tu debueras Manibus esse sacer.
 Vana queror demens: nil unquam tempora peccant,

 Vos potius nostri maeroris crimen habetis,
 sidera, fatales volvere nata vices.
 Vos penes est vitae pariter cum morte potestas,

 45 Quid iuvat, o superi, fixisse nocentia caelo
 astræ? Quid errantes constituisse globos?
 Sponte sua letum mortalibus imminet aegris,
 sponte sua e fragili corpore vita fugit.
 Si laesura homines stellarum signa fuerunt,
 50 debebat simplex aetheris esse color.
 At vos me frustra petitis lenire sodales;

Marcius ingratam properabat vincere Romam;
 victa ad maternas languit ira preces.
 Fugerat Hesperium Sertorius exul in orbem, plurima sed profugo cura parentis erat.
 65 Sancta humeris Siculi portarunt pondera fratres, Aetnaeus flamas dum vomit ore gigas,
 nec plus Tyndaridas Sparte, quam praedicat Argos trita parental fortia colla iugo.
 Saecula nec solos coluerunt prisca parentes,
 70 quin etiam nutrix tunc veneranda fuit.
 Caietam e mediis Phrygius tulit hostibus heros, illa dedit Latiis nomina litoribus.
 Acca in Romuleis meruit sollemnia fastis
 ambiguae mulier nomine tecta lupae.
 75 Iupiter altrici donavit sidera caprae, splendet adhuc liquido nobilis illa polo,
 nec minus hac Hyades gratum testantur Iacchum, quas vernus nitido Taurus in ore gerit,
 nec vero illorum quisquam neget esse gemendos 80 interitus, vitae quis mora longa fuit.
 Sincerus nulos affectus computat annos: quicquid ames, nunquam consenuisse putas.

 85 Tu me conceptum genitali in sede tulisti,

Vos, divini ignes, mundi quibus ima reguntur,
 aurea quis magni pingitur aula Iovis,
 tam quos legitimus propriis agit orbibus error,
 quam quorum caelo lumina fixa micant,
 5 vos, inquam, aeternis animati mentibus ignes,
 ad quorum motus stamina fata trahunt,
 erravi, fateor, confessae ignoscite culpae,
 contingat vobis sic aliquando quies:
 uni debueram, cunctis convicia feci,
 10 omnes damnavi, cum foret una nocens.
 Privatum quod crimen erat, commune putabam;
 non bene mens verum caeca dolore videt.
 At nunc deprensus numeris innotuit auctor,
 causa fuit cladis Cynthia sola meae.
 15 Quo pudibunda fugis? Quid te post nubila celas?
 Plus prodit timidos vana latebra reos.
 Tu certe, obscurae tu fax, Latonia, noctis, sumpsisti radios in mea damna novos.
 Nam tua germani dum proximat orbita flammis,
 20 paulatim morbo tabuit illa gravi.
 Ac pariter te lux, illam sua vita reliquit,
 heu quod deterior sors sua sorte tua est!

- Tu quippe ecce nites reparato splendida cornu,
 illius aeterna lumina nocte rigent.
 25 Ergo salutiferum quisquis te dixerit astrum,
 hunc ego convincam vana et inepta loqui.
 Summa tuae cum sint virtutis frigus et humor,
 esse salutaris qua ratione potes?
 Frigus et humor agunt, ut vexent corpora morbi,
 30 ut nata intereant, frigus et humor agunt.
 Nec dubie toto quod sis vilissima caelo,
 possessi series arguit ipsa loci.
 Esse ni vilis, non aetheris ima teneres,

 35 Quod fluidis nempe est elementis infima tellus,

Crimine saepe tuo corruptus inhorruit aér,
 corripuit populos publica saepe lues.
 Hinc et letiferas equidem tibi iure sagittas crediderim priscos attribuisse patres.
 85 His quondam innocuae Niobes cecidere puellae dilecta et summo Laodamia Iovi.
 Sed longe est ipso gravior dementia leto,
 cum torquet miseros te stimulante furor.
 Nam nec philtra magis, nec pocula mixta veneno,
 90 quam tua vis mentes exagitare solet.
 Quid facit insano peius Bellona flagello,
 aut serpentinis torva Megaera comis?
 Verum, cum semper noceas, plus omnia laedis,
 quando lates, nam tunc, quod iuvat, alter habet.
 95 Tunc magis Euripi fervent refluxibus undis, tunc tempestates turbida flabra cident.
 Nec caput est cerebro, nec plena sanguine venae,
 fluctibus et mediis ostrea sema natant;
 ipsa arent teneris exhausta arbusta medullis,
 100 nec formica suum segnior urget opus.
 Pessima sed nostro generi interlunia semper

20 cum subito nostras persensit adesse phalanges, quamvis nox medium densa teneret iter.
 Ilicet instructas agit in certamina turmas:
 hinc litui, ast illinc tympana rauca sonant.
 Infesta adversis concurrunt agmina telis,
 fit fragor et multo terra cruento madet.
 25 Ter mutata vices Victoria vertit, et hostis
 ter pugnam fertur, ter repetisse fugam.
 Sed postquam aeratas acies lux clara retexit,
 turbatum visu rettulit ille pedem.
 Magna cadit campo pars, maxima mergitur amni,
 30 pars fert captiva tristia vincla manu.
 Ipse per adversas evadit saucius undas,
 mittitur ad proprios praeda recepta Lares.
 Non tamen accepta vesanus clade quiescit,
 sed stimulat viatum bella novare pudor.
 35 Danubium rursus collecto milite transit,
 rursus et ingenti caede repulsus abit.
 Hic ego turpe ratus tantummodo nostra tueri nec rerum oblata commoditate frui continuo hostiles transcendit laetus in agros:
 40 it comes a tergo Luctus et ante Pavor.

 Gradivus ferro, Mulciber igne rapit.
 Nusquam torvus Halis, nusquam ampla potentia Turci, nusquam arcu et conto vincere doctus eques.
 45 Postquam nulla datur quaesitae copia pugnae,
 vertimus ad patrias frena retorta domos.
 Sed quoniam pratis etiam nunc herba virebat,
 nec fera militiam praepediebat hiems,
 fortunam ulterius placuit tentare secundam
 50 nec tam praesenti tam cito deesse Deo.
 Pars fuit Illyrici, quam nunc vocat incola Bosnam, dura, sed argenti munere dives humus.
 Non illic virides spatioso margine campi
 nec, sata qui multo fenore reddat, ager, 55 sed rigidi montes, sed saxa minantia caelo
 castella et summis imposita alta iugis.
 Hanc tamen invicto tutam munimine terram,

 Huc feror et regni confestim sede potitus cetera partitis viribus aggredior.

Quid tibi nunc memorem, quam saepe e turribus altis

quidve loquar, quotiens ausi prorumpere noctu 70 haud parva excubiis damna dedere meis?
Non illos validi stridens aquilonis hiatus

75 Venerat alma dies, peperit qua Virgo salutem;

 95 Sed meus a reliquo longe status ordine differt,
 nec volo, nec possum, si piger esse velim.
 Turcorum nostro nimium gens proxima regno securos nobis non sinit ire dies.
 Hanc ego perpetuis statui insectarier armis,

 Tu generi humano tantorum causa malorum,
 abs te feralis gentibus orta lues.
 Ante nec insani vexabant corpora morbi,
 10 lurida nec macies nec dolor ullus erat.
 Avia tunc nemorum mortalis turba colebat inter montanas inviolata feras.
 Quippe cibos rami praebebant, pocula rivi,
 antra casas, mollem gramina laeta torum.
 15 Nulli tum arcanas radicum noscere vires
 herbarum aut medicas vellere cura comas, nec cuiquam studium varios contundere succos
 ulcus et artifici persecuisse manu, neccum etiam pressae redolenti merce carinae
 20 portabant, Rubri quod creat ora maris.
 Vita rudis sed sospes erat, nec tabida pestis angustum fati praecipitabat iter.
 Sera sed annosae cum venerat hora senectae,
 solvebat placidus languida membra sopor.
 25 Tu postquam aetheria nitidi de lampade solis subduxti astuto lumina adempta dolo, mox letum et leti causas diffudit in orbem vindex decepti scilicet ira Iovis.

Nam male profluvio ventris cruciatus amaro
 10 turbavi attonitae gaudia paene domus.
 Mox avibus laevis regalia signa sequenti
 funestae tantum non sonuere tubae.
 Sic gravis, heu, miserum flammaverat hemitritaeos,
 tantus in accensis ossibus ardor erat.
 15 Saevior en rursus capiti Fortuna minatur, incolumi tanquam faverit illa diu.
 Quippe velut telis costae punguntur acutis,
 sputa simul large sanguinolenta fluunt.
 Additur his, pulmo quod vix respirat anhelus,
 20 nec tamen interea torrida febris abest.
 At sopor almus abest: nec luce aut nocte quiesco,
 Sed vigil horrendis vexor imaginibus.
 Tristia morosi lucratur taedia morbi
 aeger, cui pressit languida membra quies.
 25 In me nulla truces interpolat hora dolores,
 cogor et in gemitus pervigilare meos.
 Sic quondam Libyca fidei servator in urna traditur abscisis excubuisse genis.
 Qualis erit nobis, si forte erit ulla, senectus,
 30 cum sit in assiduis prima iuventa malis?
 Tricenis geminos tunc annumerabimus annos,
 cum peraget senas menstrua luna vias.

– nam quis tam mitem crudelibus inserat umbris, Orci qua fauces horrida monstra tenent? –
 hoc ades, o hominum simul et rex, Somne, deorum, 10 huc ades, et placidus languida membra leva!
 Septima iam fulget pulsis aurora tenebris,
 pectora ut in duro volvimus aegra toro.
 Multum equidem morbus, sed plus insomnia torquet,
 ante diem vires obruit illa meas.
 15 Quod modo corpus erat, nunc est cutis ossibus haerens, nunc tantum larva est, qui modo vultus erat.
 Comprimo saepe genas, et lentum invito soporem,
 nec tamen in pressas labitur ille genas.
 Tantum dira meis monstra obversantur ocellis, 20 quis nasi ingentes et Stygiae effigies, quales Alcmaeon, quales cernebat Orestes, quales tu caeso, Romule maeste, Remo.
 Immites superi, faciles per litora phocas
 sternitis, et gliri tota cubatur hiems.
 25 Iam pecudum vobis maior quam cura virorum,
 at genus hoc vestrae semina stirpis habet.
 Si tamen Endymion triginta dormiit annos,
 causa erat, ut Lunae gaudia longa forent.

 fluxisti has nostri corporis in latebras,
 nil querimur de te: tantum probitate refuges,
 tam vegeto polles nobilis ingenio,

- Affectus Erycina pios, Cyllelius artes, augendi corpus Cynthia vim tribuit;
 Cynthia, quae mortis tenet et confinia vitae,
 Cynthia sidereo subdita terra polo.
- 15 Carnea prae caelo sed si tibi testa placebant,
 hac melior certe testa legenda fuit.
 Nec me statura vel formae poenitet huius,
 sat statura modi, forma decoris habet.
 Poenitet, infirmos teneri quod corporis artus 20 molle Promethea texuit arte lутum.
- Nam mala temperies discordibus insita membris diversis causas dat sine fine malis:
 continua ex udo manat pituita cerebro,
 lumina nescio quo saepe fluore madent;
 25 effervent renes, et multo sanguine abundat
 sub stomacho calidum frigidore iecur.
 An te forte ideo gracilis compago iuvabat,
 ut saperes tenui carcere clausa magis?
 Sed quid in aegroto sapientia pectore prodest?
- 30 Non ego cum morbo Pittacus esse velim.
 Nec molem Atlantis cupio roburve Milonis,
 sim licet exilis, dummodo sospes agam.
 Aut igitur commissa diu bene membra foveto,
 aut deserta cito rursus in astra redi.
- 35 Verum ubi millenos purgata peregeris annos,
 immemoris fugito pocula tarda lacus.
 Tristia ne priscis reddant te oblivious curis,
 neu subeas iterum vincla reposta semel.

Tantus ab assiduis quid vult sibi nubibus imber,
 quid tempestatum copia tanta parat?
 Unde tot humores nebulis, tot nubila caelo,
 quando potens madidi tam fuit aura Noti?
 5 Quisve unquam tantum variae bibt Iridis arcus, pontus an arcana scandit in astra via?
 Saepe exhalatos ima de parte vapores Smintheos igniferi sustulit acre iubar, nec potuit tantum radiis consumere, quantum
 10 traxerat, in tenuis sed soluit pluvias.
 Non tamen a levibus manant tam grandia causis,

Passa sub Ogygio est aliud nec Graecia regno,
 Inachiae si quid credimus historiae.
 65 Tale fuit Latium tunc, cum superantibus Umbris
 Ausoniam gemini condidit unda maris.
 Nimirum natura suas praepostera leges vertit, et autumnus veris ademit opus.
 Vere tument amnes, et per montana voluti 70 lubrica terribili murmure saxa rotant, iam tepidum extremi cum solvunt aëra Pisces,
 cum Zephyro afflatae dimaduere nives.
 At modo successit flavae vindemia messi,
 coepit et aequatum nox superare diem.
 75 Nunc etiam torrens Nilus redit, et pia Memphis reddit lunato mystica sacra bovi.
 Pannoniae in fluvios pluvialia toxica misit
 iam refugis Phoebi Scorpius ustus equis.
 Quanquam non solis illos reor imbribus auctos, 80 nec tantum guttas evaluisse leves, sed penitus gravidas terrae patuisse cavernas cuspide percussas, Ennosigae, tua, quicquid et in venis cava celat abyssus opertis
 lymphanrum, ad superas emicuisse plagas.
 85 Hoc nobis, hoc nempe atri nova cauda cometae
 est nuper longa vaticinata iuba;

qualis tunc, Helicen cum et Buran sorbuit aequor, vicini casus nuntia signa dedit.
 Cum Thetis ignotas stupuit sub marmore turres,
 90 dormiit et medio phoca supina foro.
 Quid tamen, o superi, nosne haec tantummodo clades
 tot petit e populis, quos alit uber humus?
 An totum involvit strages simul unica mundum,

 95 Si pereunt omnes, nec nos superesse rogamus:
 aequo animo quivis publica fata subit.
 Sin luimus soli communia crimina Chuni,

aut ubi mox teneris stabam densissima baccis,
 ventus abortivas diripuisset opes!
 Praeberem vacuas aestum vitantibus umbras,

DUBIUM

Huc ades, o Stephane, templi sanctissime praesul, huc ades et sacris candidus ipse veni.
Nunc tibi natalem Phoebus fugientibus astris caeruleo exoriens vexit ab amne diem.
5 Illa Stientaeis lux est celebranda colonis, atque inter sanctos semper habenda dies.
Iam requiescit humus, vomerque et sarcula cessant,
vincla boves curvis dissoluere iugis;
nullave femineas ausa est imponere pensis
10 virgo manus dicens stamina torta colo.
Mollia non textrix innectit licia filis, tela nec attracto pectine pulsa sonat.
Nunc tibi, nunc uni indulgent, tua templa frequentant
rusticus et iuvenis, rusticus atque senex, 15 quaeque comas blanda finixerunt arte puellae,
virginis et lateri proxima semper anus.
Spargit odoratos flores tibi turba per aedem, uruntur tepidis et pia thura focus.
Suspensis rident passim delubra corymbis,
20 et variis resonant aera repulsa modis.

APPENDIX ELEGIARUM

145–6 A.

1

- Volvebam quotiens veterum monumenta virorum, et legerem Aonio carmina tincta lacu,
inspicerem quotiens summorum numina vatum,
spem posui totiens posse redire modo.
5 Credulus ipse fui, Poenus quae dixerat ante, intentata quidem nullus adire potest.
Nunc ego quid credam, terres venerande poeta,
me tibi tam docto non adhibere fidem.
Inde meam nolle penitus confundere mentem,
10 cumque tuis ventis nostra carina natet.
Surgere iam video madefactum fonte Joannem;
fonte Guarineo terque quaterque bibit,
qui cecinit ventos dictu sua iura tenentes
Aeolo et horrenda sceptra tenente manu.
15 Multa quidem audacter multi cecinere poetae,
his cytharam sensit nulla rigare manus.
Quam bene descriptis Boream pro laude furentem, rettulit et voto praemia digna suo.
Tum Zephyrum atque Notum madida cum veste reponit,
20 nec sine laude suum tam bene scribit opus.
Mittit et ingentes currens de pectore voces,
viribus atque suis credere cuncta premit.
Argumenta quidem nullis celebrata poetis
nunc video scribi tempora nostra dare.
25 Non opus Aonias posthac volitemus ad undas, quaerere nec Clarii dulcia verba dei.
Perge igitur, madidumque refer te fonte Guarini;
solvatur semper gratia magna sibi.

- Arbiter Idaeus, quamvis sua praemia nondum viderat, et qualis Tyndaris ipsa foret, dicitur absentis tepuisse cupidine formae,
 aequarat viatrix quam Cytherea suae.
 5 Ut Menelaeos subiit ratis hospita portus, obviaque est Phrygiis facta Lacaena viris;
 acer in extremis Paridi calor ossibus haesit,
 atque ipsas Helene vincere visa deas.
 Sic ego te dudum mirabar, Iane, priusquam
 10 Phoebeis legerem carmina digna sonis.
 Nam neque in obscurō potuit lux ista latere,
 nec reticet laudes Ausonis ora tuas.
 Nunc ubi se virgo cognomine Barbara non re
 obtulit Adriacis consociata choris, 15 et lecta est Tomyris, nec non Constantia Trottæ, quas immortalis, dive poeta, facis, obstupui, longeque ipsam tua gloria famam
 vicit, iudicio nec minor illa meo est.
 Illuc eniit cultæ suavissima Musæ
 20 gratia, visque tui claruit ingenii.
 Tanta ibi dicendi gravitas, facundia tanta est,
 reddar ut incertus, quid magis ipse probem.
 Et tibi Phoebus adest elegi seu carmine ludis,
 sive canis paribus grandia facta notis.
 25 O dilecta deis, o felicissima tellus,
 in qua tu fausto sidere progenitus.
 Nos quoque felices, ad quorum limina sacros
 Pieridum cantus ex Helicone refers.

Quis novus ille sacri vates Heliconis in antro,

 Dicite, Pierides, ubi primos egerit annos,

Quid formae decus et mores sanctumque pudorem,

 35 Omnia praesentes superi tibi, Iane, dedisset,

Pro pudor, intrepidi nimium secura quiescit
hostis Roma sui, Parthenopeque simul.
Nulli arma in Turcum Latii rapuere tyranni, atque Fluentinum classica nulla sonant.
15 Nec iuvat armatas pelago deducere classes
Trinacriam, et merces dedidicisse suas.
Gallia dormitat, nec curat Iberia Christum, hei mihi, verus amor spesque fidesque perit,
nam quid ego hic referam divisos orbe Britannos 20 aeterni populum destituisse dei?
Finitimos certe tecum tractasse decebat Teutonicos sumpta casside, tela manu proque fide et patria vitam pro laude pacisci, esset ut exemplo postmodo quisque pius.
25 Hii cessant omnes soli tibi, maxime regum, dant Veneti innumeratas gens veneranda rates.
Nec mirum, nec enim tantum iustissima regem
res Veneta in dubiis destituisse potest, cuius nunc sancto pelagus dictante senatu
30 Ionium remo scinditur Ausonio Chalcidicusque tenet tuto sua moenia somno, qui per Aegaeas incola currat aquas.
Hostes nempe suam Neptuno inducere classem extimeant, Marci dum mare signa tenet.
35 Hinc modo (si cunctas Latii iam sparsa per urbes non est mendaci fama locuta sono) adversas perhibent Vulcano occumbere gentes, atque hausto mergi corpora multa salo.
Hinc furor, hinc rabies Turcum male sana lassedit,
40 quod premitur terra pulsus et ipse mari.
Praesertim horrisono quod tu petis ense nocentem,
atque agis intrepida proelia dura manu,
atque data est moles cui tanti et sarcina belli,
cuius et auspiciis credita summa rei.
45 Quod scit magnanimo non degenerare parenti,
qui merito excelsi nunc videt ora dei.
Nam quater et decies fudit certamine Turcos nescius infestos otiaque ulla pati.

Nam patrium iuxta vires dum cogimus Ystrum,
Venturum Martis dum meditamur opus:
Ecce proteruus Halis fiducia summa suo,
Sirmia traecto peruolat arua Sauo,
Nimirum egregia sperans se laude potiri,
Vreret ante oculos si mea Regna meos.
Iam prædam referebat ouans, iam victor abibat,
Per modo transmissas mox fugiturus aquas,
Quum subito nostras præsensit adesse Phalanges,
Quamuis nox medium densa teneret iter,

Hinc litui, ast illinc timpana rauca sonant.
Infesta aduersis concurrunt agmina teli.
Fit fragor, & multo terra cruento mader,
Ter mutata vices victoria vertit, & hostis
Ter pugnam fertur, ter repetisse fugam.
Sed postq; ætatas acies lux clara rexit,
